Empowering Rural Entrepreneurs through Cluster Level Federations

Sagar Kisan Wadkar
Naveen Kumar Singh

Self-Help Groups or SHGs are a grassroots informal organisations aiming at empowering rural women. SHGs normally include 10 to 20 members who pool their resources, work together to save money, and provide a helping hand to one another, and engage in income-generating activities.

In India, the Self-Help Group (SHG) movement gained traction in the 1980s and has since evolved into an effective instrument for reducing poverty and promoting women's autonomy. During the first phase (1984-2011), the emphasis was on promoting SHGs and instilling a 'thrift & savings' mindset among SHG members. The aim of the second phase (2012-13 onwards), i.e., the current DAY-National Rural Livelihood Mission (NRLM) initiative of the Ministry of Rural Development, is on up-scaling and institutionalisation of SHGs across the Country. Under this Mission, SHG movement has also promoted social empowerment, with women adopting active leadership positions in their communities. SHG members take part in Gram-Sabha and in a variety of community development activities, such as organising awareness campaigns, pushing for women's rights, and carrying out social welfare programmes.

Despite the fact that SHGs have demonstrated a tremendous potential for community empowerment, they usually require the guidance and assistance of professionals in order to attain their full potential. The provision of knowledge sharing, technical assistance, training, and mentorship to SHG members is a vital duty that is normally carried out by professionals working in mission management units ranging from the block level to the district, state, and national levels. Nonetheless, despite their important contributions, SHGs face a number of obstacles, including limited access to finance and financial services, lack of market links, limited government aid, member movement, and so on.

The Self-Employed Women's Association was founded in 1972, which is regarded as the start of the Self-Help Group movement in India. Its revolutionary potential during the COVID-19 pandemic, played an important role in the improvement of rural communities by providing women with more agency.

Present Status:

There are about 120 million SHGs in India, with around 88% of those SHGs being solely for women. Kudumbashree in Kerala, Jeevika in Bihar, Mahila Arthik Vikas Maha Mandal in Maharashtra, and Looms of Ladakh are examples of successful organisations. The Self-Help Group Bank Linkage Programme (SHG-BLP) launched in 1992, has evolved to become the world's largest microfinance programme.

According to the Economic Survey of India Report 2022-23, the SHG-BLP consist of 142 million households working through 11.9 million SHGs. These households have a total of 472.4 billion rupees in savings deposits and 1,510.5 billion rupees in outstanding collateral-free loans. The number of credit-linked SHGs has increased at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 10.8%

Leveraging EdTech for Enhanced Access & Inclusivity in Education

Dr Rajesh Kumar

In the past, higher education or specialisation in any discipline was limited to the privileged people due to the scarcity of reading and training materials and the need to travel to centers of knowledge. Today, the internet provides a wealth of information, allowing anyone with access to learn online courses, podcasts, and avail degrees, diplomas and certificates. Technology has democratised learning, offering unprecedented educational opportunities.

Moreover, technology has broken down barriers to communication and collaboration in education. Traditional classrooms were isolated, limiting collaboration to students within the same physical space. However, technology has shattered those barriers. For instance, students can explore different subjects and engage with experts through real-time expeditions, blogs, emails, and video conferences and simulations. Students from different locations can collaborate on projects using the Internet of Things (IoT). Technology has expanded the possibilities for learning, communicating, and collaborating beyond the confines of the classroom.

Technology has also transformed the roles of teachers and learners. In traditional classrooms, teachers were the main source of information, while students were passive recipients. However, with technology providing easier access to information, teachers now serve as "guide on the side", empowering students to take ownership of their learning. Educational institutions are redesigning learning spaces to foster interaction and utilising technology as an empowering tool. Furthermore, technology has enabled education to be accessible anytime and anywhere.

The COVID-19 lockdown had a significant impact on the EdTech sector. During the lockdown, with schools and educational institutions closed, there was a surge in demand for online learning platforms and digital

Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi celebrated the recent accomplishments of Indian sports teams in international competitions. The Women's Junior Asia Cup saw the Indian team emerging triumphant for the first time, while Men's Hockey Team secured victory in the Junior Asia Cup, establishing themselves as the most successful team in the tournament's history. The Junior Shooting World Cup showcased the prowess of our junior team as they claimed the top spot, with India accounting for an impressive 20% of the gold medals. Sports events across different states of the country are now organised with renewed enthusiasm, providing players with opportunities to excel, learn from defeats, and bloom. The recent Khelo India University Games in Uttar Pradesh witnessed remarkable enthusiasm among the youth, resulting in the breaking of 11 records. These tournaments also bring forth inspiring stories of young players, such as Anyatam Rajkumar, the first Divyang athlete from Assam's Cotton University to participate in the rowing event, and Nidhi Pawaiya from Barkatullah University, who won a gold medal in shot put despite a serious knee injury. Shubham Bhandare from Savitribai Phule Pune University overcame disappointment from an ankle injury last year to become a gold medalist in steeplechase. Similarly, Saraswati Kundu from Burdwan University captained her Kabaddi team, overcoming numerous challenges. The PM noted the TOPS Scheme has also provided significant support to our best-performing athletes.

Ripple Effect of Mann Ki Baat

Noting instances where countrymen have found renewed inspiration after a particular topic was discussed on "Mann Ki Baat," the Prime Minister shared that he recently received a letter from the renowned Indian classical dancer, Smt Ananda Shankar Jayant. In her heartfelt letter, she expressed her gratitude for an episode of "Mann Ki Baat" that focused on the art of storytelling. Inspired by the topic, Ananda Shankar Jayant curated "Kutti Kahani" - a magnificent collection of stories from various languages crafted specifically for children. Smt Ananda Shankar Jayant took a step further by sharing captivating videos of these stories on her YouTube channel, enabling children from all corners of the country to engage with these enchanting tales. As we witness the positive ripple effects of these initiatives, it becomes evident that our collective efforts can shape a brighter future for India, where creativity, culture, and progress intertwine harmoniously.

Mission MAHIR: Driving Advanced Research & Innovation in Power Sector

EN Explain

Power and Energy are two essential inputs for economic development and improving the quality of life in India. Development of conventional forms of energy for meeting the growing energy needs of society at a reasonable cost is the responsibility of the Government. Advanced and high-impact research on the latest and emerging technologies related to the energy sector is an immediate necessity. In order to stay ahead in the rapidly advancing world of innovation, it is crucial to quickly identify emerging technologies and develop the technologies indigenously, at scale, for deployment within and outside the country. Such technologies will serve as the main fuel for the economic growth in future and make India a manufacturing hub of the world.

Towards this end, the Ministry of Power and Ministry of New & Renewable Energy (MNRE) have planned for end-to-end development of advanced technologies to make the future power system in the country robust and advanced so that India takes the lead in the disruptive technologies in the power sector, as to ensure self-reliance in meeting our energy needs with wide societal and commercial benefits. To leverage emerging technologies in the power sector, a national mission MAHIR has been launched by the two Ministries.

What is MAHIR?

Mission on Advanced and High-Impact Research (MAHIR) aims to identify emerging technologies in the energy sector and take them to the implementation stage. The mission will serve as a catalyst for national priorities such as achieving 'net zero' emissions and promoting initiatives like Make in India and Start-up India. It will also contribute towards achieving the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

With a projection of India's growth rate of 7% in the coming years, the electricity demand is expected to increase at close to 10%. Furthermore, India is aiming for an energy transition following the Prime Minister's vision of LiFE which requires not only massive investment but also a transformational approach driven by research & innovation. In this regard, MAHIR will work towards Industry-Academia-Government collaboration to create an ecosystem for innovation and translation of research in the power sector. The Mission will work with premier institutions such as IITs, IIMs, NITs, IISERs and Universities on the one hand and public and private power sector start-ups and established industries on the other, with the government acting as an enabler for creating an innovation ecosystem.

Mission Objectives

The key objectives of the Mission are as follows:

- To identify emerging technologies and areas of future relevance for the global power sector and take up indigenous end-to-end development of relevant technologies

- To provide a common platform for power sector stakeholders for collective brainstorming, synergetic technology development and devise pathways for smooth transfer of technology
- To support pilot projects of indigenous technologies (developed especially by Indian start-ups) and facilitate their commercialisation
- To leverage foreign alliances and partnerships to accelerate research & development of advanced technologies and to build competencies, capabilities and access to advanced technologies through bilateral or multilateral collaborations, thereby facilitating exchange of knowhow and technology transfer.
- To seed, nurture and scale up scientific and industrial R&D and to create vibrant & innovative power sector ecosystem
- To make India a leading country in power system related technologies & applications development

Areas Identified for Research

To begin with, eight areas are identified for research: (i) alternatives to Lithium-ion storage batteries (ii) modifying electric cookers/pans to suit Indian cooking methods (iii) green hydrogen for mobility (high efficiency fuel cell) (iv) carbon capture (v) geo-thermal energy (vi) solid state refrigeration (vii) nano technology for EV batteries (viii) indigenous CRGO technology.

Structure of the Mission

The Mission will have a two-tier structure - a Technical Scoping Committee and an Apex Committee.

The Technical Scoping Committee (TSC), chaired by the Chairperson of Central Electricity Authority, will identify ongoing and emerging research areas globally, recommend potential technologies for development under the Mission, justify the techno-economic advantages, provide research outlines, and conduct periodic monitoring of approved research projects.

In addition, the TSC will survey and identify the on-going and emerging areas of research globally and will make recommendations to the Apex Committee. The TSC shall identify the potential technologies that can be considered for development under the Mission. The TSC will bring out the relevance of the technology for the future of the Power Sector and justify the Techno-economic advantage of indigenous development of the Technology and come out with a roadmap for market creation for the Technology. The TSC will also provide a broad range of specifications desired from the final product. Periodic monitoring of the approved research projects will also be carried out by the TSC.

The Apex Committee, chaired by the Union Minister for Power & New and Renewable Energy will deliberate on the technology and products to be developed and approve the research proposals. The Apex committee will also look into international collaborations.

Moreover, the Apex Committee will approve the research proposals and monitor the progress of research. The technology/product to be developed under the Mission will be deliberated by the Apex Committee. The final approval of all the research proposals/projects shall be given by the Apex Committee. If the TSC recommends international collaboration for the development of technology, the same shall also be taken up by the Apex Committee for discussion with the collaborating country. Approval of any collaboration, the technology to be developed and agreement to be entered into with the collaborative country will be decided by the Apex Committee.

Central Power Research Institute (CPRI), Bengaluru will provide all necessary secretarial assistance to the Apex Committee and Technical Scoping Committee.

Scope of the Mission

Under the Mission, once research areas are identified and approved by the Apex Committee, the proposals for outcome-linked funding will be invited from companies/organisations across the globe. The selection of the proposal shall be done through Quality cum Cost-Based Selection (QCBS) basis. The organisations of the Ministries may also co-develop the technologies with the selected Research Agency. The IPR of the technology developed would be shared by the Government of India and the Research Agency.

The Mission shall also fund pilot projects of technologies developed by Indian Start-ups and facilitate their commercialisation through the Central Public Sector Enterprises under both the Ministries. The start-ups will have to share the IPR with the Government of India/Central Power Research Institute.

The Mission will facilitate international collaboration for smooth exchange of know-how and Technology Transfer. The Mission will be responsible for seeking collaboration with the best laboratories of the world for joint development of technologies.

Key Modalities

Planned for an initial period of five years from 2023-24 to 2027-28, the Mission will follow the technology life cycle approach of 'Idea to Product'. The Mission will be funded by pooling financial resources of the Ministry of Power, MNRE and the Central Public Sector Enterprises under the two Ministries. Any additional funding needed will be mobilised from Government of India's budgetary resources.

Proposals will be invited from companies/educational institutes/reputed universities/research laboratories/research organisations/ industries/start-ups/other reputed agencies across the globe. The initial scrutiny of the proposals will be carried out by the Mission Secretariat and subsequently screened by the Technical Scoping Committee. Based on the recommendation of the TSC, projects will be placed before the Apex Committee for final consideration.

A centralised web portal for Mission will be created on the cloud which will provide collective information of running status of all the activities under the Mission. Such a portal will be a dynamic repository of information on all activities/components, resources and outputs, associated with the Mission. This will be maintained and continuously updated for monitoring the progress of the Mission by the Mission Secretariat.

Empowering Rural Entrepreneurs through...

during the past ten years (FY13 to FY22), while the amount of credit disbursed by each SHG has increased at a CAGR of 5.8%. Incredible as it may sound, SHG has repayment rates that are higher than 96%, which demonstrates both their credit discipline and their dependability.

Currently, the emphasis is on scaling-up and skilling of these SHGs and their village organisations (primary level) into Cluster Level Federations (CLFs) in order to create sustainable livelihood opportunities, boosting financial inclusion, and social empowerment. As per NRLM data 2022-23, the process of registering 29,944 CLF is currently underway. Out of this, around 6,386 CLFs have been successfully registered. The success stories of SHGs and CLFs show that the potential for collective action and grassroots empowerment exists, despite the difficulties that SHGs must overcome. The SHG movement has the potential to extend its reach and have beneficial impact on the lives of millions of people if it receives consistent assistance from experts, government agencies, and civil society organisations.

The SHGs and village organisations first collaborated on their own, but eventually federated to form Cluster Level Federations (CLFs) with the goal of collaborating, pooling resources, and making higher-level collective ownership and collective decisions. As a result of this consolidation, their influence, access to finances, advocacy skills, and ability to carry out larger-scale operations have all grown. This article attempts to portray how the CLFs are unleashing opportunities for women and youth through the lens of "Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti Ltd."

Evolution of Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti Ltd.
The Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti Ltd. began as a secondary level SHG federation. It had about 2,300 SHG members at the time and was made up of 17 local organisations. This collaborative effort was critical in bringing together a range of government schemes and ensuring the participants' economic, nutritional, and livelihood security. Swabhiman chose to be incorporated as a cooperative society in line with the Bihar Self-Supporting Cooperative Society Act of 1996 as a consequence of its impact. Swabhiman now has 9,555 members.

Multitude of Business Activities: Swabhiman's operations cover a wide range of sectors, all of which have a direct or indirect impact on the lives of its members. It provides a wide range of services, including financing, insurance, stitching, agricultural equipment services, farmer training and information centres, goat breeding, fisheries, and poultry production, among others. It indirectly support extension of agricultural inputs, peasants education, and aggregation of agri-outputs. This multi-sectoral strategy guarantees a holistic approach to rural development and empowers its members in a number of livelihood fields.

Swabhiman has hired a number of community specialists to assist project employees from the Bihar Rural Livelihoods Promotion Society (BRLPS) in handling a wide range of activities. This has allowed Swabhiman to manage a range of tasks more successfully. These professionals perform critical responsibilities in aiding with the implementation of various projects and offering support to members of the community. The following are some of the job opportunities offered by Swabhiman and such CLF cooperatives:

- ◆ Credit Professionals: These individuals are responsible for serving as loan officers, credit analysts, and risk managers. They ensure responsible lending practises and offer financial support to the members of the organisation.
- ◆ Experts in Stitching: Tailors, designers, pattern makers, and quality control professionals are employed to supervise the manufacture of garments, various stitching techniques, the development of designs, and quality control.

- ◆ Services Relating to Agricultural Machinery and Equipment: In order to support agricultural activities, businesses need to employ technicians and mechanics who are skilled in the operation, maintenance, and repair of agricultural machinery and equipment.
- ◆ Agricultural trainers, extension workers, and subject matter experts: They provide instruction, assistance, and information on contemporary farming techniques, crop management, and best practises to increase agricultural output through Farmer Training and Information Centres (FTICs).
- ◆ Vets and Paravets: Animal husbandry specialists, veterinarians, and livestock breeders are all employed in order to provide expertise in the areas of goat breeding, healthcare, and management.
- ◆ Fisheries: Aquaculture professionals and fisheries managers with understanding of fish farming techniques, pond management, disease control, and marketing of fishery products are employed to assist the activities associated with fisheries.
- ◆ Poultry: The administration of poultry, the selection of breeds, the upkeep of their health, and the composition of feed all require the expertise of poultry specialists, veterinarians, and the administrators of poultry farms.
- ◆ Farm Input Supply: Professionals that specialise in agro-inputs make certain that seeds, fertilizer, and other agricultural inputs are delivered in a timely and effective manner to support farming activities.
- ◆ Output Aggregation: In order to facilitate the aggregation and sale of agricultural produce, market analysts, market linkage experts, and supply chain coordinators with understanding of market trends, pricing mechanisms, and logistics management are engaged.
- ◆ Management Practises: Administrative employees, accountants, and domain managers are employed to oversee the day-to-day operations, financial management, monitoring, and assessment of Swabhiman's activities. Additionally, there are domain managers who are responsible for the overall management of the domain.

The constant advancement of Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti Ltd. has substantially transformed the lives of individuals who are a part of it. Because it provided them with legal financing and insurance, they were able to invest in their businesses, increasing their standard of life and bringing them closer to financial security. Furthermore, the cooperative has encouraged social inclusion and participation in local government systems, allowing its members to participate in decision-making and speak on behalf of their own communities.

Certain prerequisites must be met before attempting to match Swabhiman's level of achievement. Some of these include sense of ownership and belongingness, appropriate legal frameworks, institutional support from government organisations, economic opportunities for livelihood development, social acceptance and inclusion of marginalised communities, handhold support from domain experts, adoption technological resources, and a focus on environmental sustainability. Other CLF Cooperatives, if they fit these criteria, can work towards similar rural development objectives.

Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti Ltd.'s journey can serve as a model for other cooperatives and self-help organisations, emphasising the importance of collective action in the promotion of sustainable development and empowerment. Cooperatives have the ability to make long-term, positive change in the lives of individuals and communities if they are effective in forming partnerships, building individual and collective capabilities, and promoting inclusive practices.

Employing professionals with diverse skill sets allows the cooperative to function effectively, make optimal use of existing resources, and create the most potential impact with the activities it undertakes.

The story Swabhiman Jeevika Mahila Swavlambi Sahkari Samiti demonstrated the potential avenue for the Self-Help Group (SHG) movement in India by registering their SHG federations as cooperatives. This approach can bring several benefits and opportunities like enhanced legal status, collective bargaining power, access to institutional support, risk sharing and resource mobilisation, professionalisation and governance, scaling up and replication and so on. Ultimately, the potential of SHG federations as registered cooperatives lies in their ability to enhance collaboration, strengthen their voice, access resources, and achieve sustainable development for their members and communities.

education resources. EdTech companies experienced unprecedented growth as students and parents sought alternative ways to continue education remotely. However, as restrictions eased and schools reopened, the EdTech sector faced new challenges with some learners returning to traditional classrooms. Nevertheless, the pandemic had reshaped the perception and value of online education. EdTech companies had to adapt and evolve to meet the changing needs of students, educators, and parents. The easing of COVID lockdowns acted as a catalyst for the EdTech sector to innovate further and establish a more prominent and permanent presence in the education landscape. They focused on enhancing their offerings, improving user experience, and providing innovative solutions that complemented traditional classroom settings.

EdTech companies are experiencing a remarkable transformation in their objectives and strategies as they adapt to the post-COVID landscape. The education sector has always been crucial for India's development, and the government has been committed to implementing policies that create more opportunities in this industry. The post pandemic scenario has highlighted the need for a hybrid education model, leading to the emergence and expansion of EdTech companies. As students increasingly turn to these platforms, the companies have experienced significant growth in revenue and operations, expanding their product offerings and targeting the global market through mergers and acquisitions.

The rise of EdTech startups in India has been driven by entrepreneurs identifying and addressing gaps in the education system with modern business models. Initially, some key gaps included the lack of cost-effective and quality content, a disconnect between content curators and learners, and an imbalanced teacher-student ratio. The integration of advanced technology into the education system has allowed the industry to overcome these challenges and deliver improved experiences.

The Indian EdTech industry has a massive opportunity for growth, with projections suggesting it could become a $10 billion economy by 2025. Several factors contribute to this growth potential, including the high penetration of the internet and smart devices, increased online content consumption, and the demand for skilled professionals in the workforce.

EdTech startups have capitalised on this trend by offering a range of products in different formats including visual and textual offerings. As video consumption is projected to comprise 77% of overall internet traffic by 2022, the demand for online educational content is set to grow exponentially.

EdTech for upskilling and reskilling: India has a young employable population, with the majority of EdTech startups targeting the age group of 15 to 64 years. This population segment comprises both the existing employed or employable groups and individuals potentially joining the workforce in the near future. As skill development and online certification become crucial for employability in the modern job market, there is a growing demand for EdTech companies offering these services.

The rapid growth of new-age technologies, such as machine learning, artificial intelligence, blockchain, augmented/virtual reality, and natural language processing, has created millions of jobs in India. However, these domains require specific skill sets that are often lacking in Indian graduates. This has led to an increased demand for upskilling and online learning platforms as professionals seek to acquire the necessary skills. With an estimated 280 million individuals expected to enter the job market by 2050, the need for reskilling and acquiring new skills is becoming increasingly vital for working professionals.

However, there are still disparities in digital access, particularly in low-income areas. To bridge these gaps and leverage technology for learning, the National Education Policy 2020 focuses on digital infrastructure, human infrastructure, and logistical systems. The policy aims to create a learner-centered model that offers flexibility in instructional approaches and promotes inclusivity.

Fostering Inclusivity Through PPP

Collaboration between the government and EdTech companies is a key aspect of the National Education Policy. The establishment of the National Education Alliance for Technology (NEAT) promotes collaboration between EdTech companies and academic institutions. NEAT, a Public-Private Partnership (PPP) model aims to enhance employability skills, bridge learning gaps, and offer personalised learning experiences. It provides a platform for Indian EdTech startups to collaborate with academic institutions and address the requirements of various industries. NEAT also emphasises inclusivity by offering free course coupons to economically and socially disadvantaged students.

NEAT offers a wide range of courses in collaboration with industry partners. These courses focus on making learners job-ready and cover areas such as finance, data science, artificial intelligence, language learning, and cybersecurity. They provide certifications at different skill levels and contribute to bridging the skills divide. NEAT supports educators by providing pedagogical techniques and subject matter expertise, benefiting institutions and enhancing educational offerings.

Through collaborative efforts, NEAT and its industry partners merge academic rigor with real-world insights, closing the gap between theory and application. This empowers individuals from diverse backgrounds to succeed and contribute meaningfully to society. NEAT's course catalogue can be accessed through their official website www. https://neat.aicte-india.org. EdTech Promoting Aatmanirbharta in Education:

NEAT actively promotes Indian educational technology companies as part of the "Aatmanirbhar Bharat" mission, facilitating collaboration between these companies and academic institutions. This collaboration aims to bridge the gap between academic learning, upskilling initiatives, and the requirements of various industries. Presently, India boasts a promising landscape of more than 4000 EdTech startups vying for prominence in the market. The NEAT has ushered in additional possibilities for these startups, rendering the market even more enticing and projecting heightened competition in the foreseeable future. Collaborations on the NEAT platform have special focus on vocational skilling, upskilling, and reskilling in emerging technologies such as artificial intelligence/machine learning, as well as domains of national importance like quantum computing, 5G, and semiconductor technologies.

Moreover, NEAT has taken steps to ensure inclusivity by offering free course coupons or seats, amounting to 25% of the total seats, to economically and socially disadvantaged students.

Countering the Downsides

India's EdTech sector, despite being a booming industry, has recently faced numerous challenges, raising concerns about its practices and the need for regulation. Reports of substandard course quality, misleading marketing, lack of transparency, and cheating have flooded social media platforms, leaving students feeling deceived and demanding greater oversight. While the government issued an advisory urging caution, there have been calls from various quarters for stricter regulations. Lawmakers have also expressed concerns about the industry's focus on profit over quality education and highlighted the disparity between the permissions required for traditional educational institutions and the ease with which EdTech firms can operate. Privacy concerns have further fueled the debate, with reports of data collection and tracking practices. Additionally, the EdTech sector has faced financial challenges after easing of the COVID lockdown, leading to layoffs and mounting disillusionment. The industry must address these issues, including abusive work cultures and lengthy working hours, and prioritise rebuilding trust by placing education quality above profit motives.

BEST ENTRY FOR
ISSUE DATED 10 - 16 June 2023

Question: The Prime Minister, in his recent episode of 'Mann ki Baat', programme talked about the importance of museums in preserving the past and making the young generation better acquainted with their heritage. Which museum in India have you found unique and with what new learning takeaway?

Tadipamula Avinash
Hyderabad

One museum in India that I found unique and enlightening is the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj Vastu Sangrahalaya, formerly known as the Prince of Wales Museum, located in Mumbai. This museum showcases an extensive collection of art, artifacts, and exhibits covering span of thousands of years, providing a glimpse into India's rich cultural heritage.

During my visit, I was particularly captivated by the museum's collection of ancient sculptures and artifacts from different periods of Indian history. The intricately carved sculptures, ranging from the Indus Valley Civilisation to the medieval era, offered a fascinating insight into the artistic and cultural evolution of the region. Each piece seemed to narrate a story of its own, connecting the present with the past.

One of the most significant takeaways from this museum was the appreciation for diversity and vastness of India's cultural heritage. It made me realise the depth of our country's history and the importance of preserving it for future generations. Moreover, the museum emphasised the need for young people to connect with their roots and develop a sense of pride and respect for their heritage.

Exploring the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj Vastu Sangrahalaya was a journey through time, offering a renewed perspective on Indian history and culture. It inspired me to delve deeper into the richness of our heritage and encouraged me to explore more museums and historical sites across India. The experience left me with a profound appreciation for the role museums play in preserving the past and fostering a stronger connection between generations.
