BRICS: The Building Blocks of a New World Order

Ritesh Kumar

The BRICS Summit 2023 marked a momentous occasion with 6 more nations being invited to join. Equally remarkable is the fact that no fewer than 43 nations have conveyed their aspirations to join this coalition, with a solid 22 of them formally lodging applications. This implies that beneath the veneer of verbal exchanges and diplomatic gestures lies a profound undercurrent of transformation that appears poised to disrupt the established global order. At its core, this transformation aims to amplify the voices of economically disadvantaged nations, bolstered by the burgeoning economic prowess of emerging economies.

From BRICS to BRICS+

The 15th BRICS Summit concluded on August 24, with the highlight being the invitation extended by the current BRICS members - Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa - to invite a further six nations to join them. Invitations have been issued to Argentina, Egypt, Ethiopia, Iran, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates. All had previously expressed a desire to join the bloc and had sent official applications to do so. The six new members are expected to officially join the bloc from January 1, 2024. This expansion, which effectively doubled the group's membership, marked an extraordinary development unprecedented in recent years as the bloc is now poised to transition from BRICS to BRICS+, signifying a more inclusive approach to international cooperation.

In today's rapidly evolving world, the geopolitical landscape is shifting, and nations are increasingly exploring new possibilities and seeking to reconfigure international relations beyond traditional paradigms. A noteworthy aspect of the BRICS+ format is the reluctance, particularly in the Global South, to become embroiled in the ongoing global power struggles. While the BRICS+ has not yet articulated a comprehensive model of global governance, it is essential to recognise that this coalition is not solely driven by political maneuvering aimed at advancing a particular nation's vision of international order. Each member of the BRICS+ and potential future partners brings their unique agenda to the table, seeking to promote their visions and enhance their participation in the global economy. This sentiment highlights that the BRICS+ will continue as a diverse and heterogeneous coalition with ambitious aspirations.

The expansion of the BRICS group carries significant implications for future global trade and cross-border investment. While critics argue that the BRICS is not a formalized trade bloc, its flexible nature enables swift consensus-building and allows for the negotiation of agreements without immediate institutionalization. This informality serves the BRICS well at its current stage of development, as it facilitates agility in decision-making, deferring the establishment of rigid institutional structures for a later time. This fluidity can be intentional, making the BRICS group less susceptible to categorization and thus more challenging for external parties to engage with effectively. Specifically, in

Nurturing Technical Textiles through Startups and Academic Excellence

Jyoti Tiwari

The Government of India has approved a new scheme for providing financial assistance of up to Rs 50 lakh to startups and individuals engaged in technical textiles. Moreover, 26 premier institutes have been identified for promoting research, innovation and academics in technical textiles with preparations underway for introducing a full-fledged degree programme in Technical Textiles from academic year 2025-26. This article aims to give you a deeper insight into the realm of technical textiles and the latest initiatives and trends that are poised to shape the sector's trajectory in the near future.

Textiles are often unfairly pigeonholed into the narrow categories of garments and upholstery, but the reality is that the textile world is transitioned into a far more expansive field than meets the eye. Technical textiles have been the driving force behind this transformation, breaking boundaries and infiltrating unexpected domains. These innovative fabrics, equipped with cutting-edge technology, now play pivotal roles in heavy industries such as construction, infrastructure development, healthcare, and defense. They are not mere materials; they are dynamic solutions.

Technical textiles are leading the transformation of the textile world is exemplified by their remarkable applications across the globe. Now, let's delve into specific examples from various countries to illustrate the diverse and innovative ways in which technical textiles are making a profound impact on industries worldwide.

In Austria, geotextile barriers deflect avalanches from entering reservoirs, ensuring the safety of surrounding areas. The Netherlands employs geotextile-reinforced asphalt systems to mend cracked road surfaces, granting roads longevity and resilience in the face of wear and tear. Croatia strengthens runways using mechanically bonded nonwoven fabrics, reducing the need for frequent maintenance at airports. Portugal's railway system along the Tua river relies on non-woven materials, enhancing long-term filtration capabilities and minimizing clogging risks, thus guaranteeing the reliability and efficiency of the railway network.

In Israel, the cutting-edge Protech sector showcases high-end camouflage technology that utilises thermal visual concealment materials to render soldiers less detectable, significantly enhancing military capabilities. Furthermore, Israel's innovative

Aditya-L1 : India's Maiden Solar Mission

Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) successfully launched Aditya-L1, India's first solar mission, from Satish Dhawan Space Centre in Andhra Pradesh's Sriharikota on September 2, 2023. Aditya-L1 shall be the first space-based Indian observatory to study the Sun. The spacecraft shall be placed in a halo orbit around the Lagrange point 1 (L1) of the Sun-Earth system, which is about 1.5 million km from the Earth. The successful launch of India's first solar mission came a week after the historic landing of Chandrayaan-3 on the south pole of the lunar surface.

Why study Sun?

The Sun is the nearest star and therefore can be studied in much more detail as compared to other stars. By studying the Sun, the Indian space agency envisages to learn much more about stars in our Milky Way as well as about stars in various other galaxies.

The Sun is a very dynamic star that shows several eruptive phenomena and releases immense amounts of energy in the solar system. ISRO states that if such explosive solar phenomena is directed towards the earth, it could cause various types of disturbances in the near earth space environment.

Various spacecraft and communication systems are prone to such disturbances and therefore an early warning of such events is important for taking corrective measures beforehand. In addition to these, if an astronaut is directly exposed to such explosive phenomena, he/she would be in danger. The various thermal and magnetic phenomena on the Sun are of extreme nature. Thus, the Sun also provides a good natural laboratory to understand those phenomena which cannot be directly studied in the lab.

What are Lagrange points?

Named in honour of Italian-French mathematician Joseph-Louis Lagrange, these points are positions in space where objects sent there tend to stay put. At Lagrange points, the gravitational pull of two large masses, like the Sun and the Earth, precisely equals the centripetal force required for a small object to move with them. These points in space can be used by spacecraft to reduce fuel consumption needed to remain in position.

There are five special points where a small mass can orbit in a constant pattern with two larger masses. The L1 point of the Earth-Sun system affords an uninterrupted view of the Sun and is currently home to the joint NASA-ESA Solar & Heliospheric Observatory mission (SOHO).

Aditya L-1 shall be placed in a halo orbit around the L1 of the Sun-Earth system. A satellite placed in the halo orbit around the L1 point has the major advantage of continuously viewing the Sun without any occultation/eclipses. This will provide a greater advantage of observing the solar activities and its effect on space weather in real time.

Aditya-L1

The Aditya-L1 mission has been launched by ISRO's PSLV rocket. After initially being placed in a low earth orbit, the spacecraft's orbit will subsequently be made more elliptical and later it will be launched towards the Lagrange point L1 by using on-board propulsion. As the spacecraft travels towards L1, it will exit the earth's gravitational Sphere of Influence (SOI). After exit from SOI, the cruise phase will start and subsequently the spacecraft will be injected into a large halo orbit around L1. The total travel time from launch to L1 would take about four months for Aditya-L1.

The Aditya-L1 mission carries a suite of seven scientific payloads to carry out systematic study of the photosphere, chromosphere and the outermost layers of the Sun (the corona) using electromagnetic and particle and magnetic field detectors. The Visible Emission Line Coronagraph (VELC) shall study the solar corona and dynamics of Coronal Mass Ejections. The Solar Ultraviolet Imaging Telescope (SUIT) payload shall image the Solar Photosphere and Chromosphere in near Ultraviolet (UV) and also measure the solar irradiance variations in near UV. The Aditya Solar wind Particle EXperiment (ASPEX) and Plasma Analyser Package for Aditya (PAPA) payloads shall study the solar wind and energetic ions, as well as their energy distribution. The Solar Low Energy X-ray Spectrometer (SoLEXS) and The High Energy L1 Orbiting X-ray Spectrometer (HEL1OS) shall study the X-ray flares from the Sun over a wide X-ray energy range. The Magnetometer payload is capable of measuring interplanetary magnetic fields at the L1 point.

Using the special vantage point L1, four payloads shall directly view the Sun and the remaining three payloads shall carry out in-situ studies of particles and fields at the L1, thus providing important scientific studies of the propagatory effect of solar dynamics in the interplanetary medium.

The suits of Aditya-L1 payloads are expected to provide crucial information to understand the problem of coronal heating, coronal mass ejection, pre-flare and flare activities and their characteristics, dynamics of space weather, propagation of particles and fields, etc.

BRICS: The Building Blocks of a New World Order

dealing with Western counterparts, this approach resembles a 'divide and conquer' strategy, as there is no centralized BRICS secretariat, making the group immune to sanctions.

However, it is essential to recognize that the BRICS members are actively working on constructing institutional frameworks, as exemplified by the BRICS New Development Bank, among other initiatives explicitly outlined in the BRICS 2023 Summit Official Declaration. Notably, the policy document underscores the group's commitment to reforming existing global institutions, including the United Nations, World Bank, International Monetary Fund (IMF), World Trade Organization (WTO), and World Health Organization (WHO). The BRICS states intend to pursue these reforms through democratic platforms within the UN. As the BRICS expands its influence over an additional 69 countries, with China's Belt and Road Initiative already encompassing 147 nations, these collective votes hold potential leverage for reshaping the United Nations and its affiliated organizations.

Consequently, this evolving landscape implies that the traditional dominance of the G7, an exclusive club of affluent nations, may increasingly appear outdated. The outcomes of the 2023 BRICS summit align with its stated objectives, signaling the commencement of an irreversible transformation towards a multipolar global trade environment, in contrast to the previous unipolar structure. This transition carries far-reaching consequences for the international trade and economic order.

The broader membership, nonetheless, brings challenges in terms of reaching consensus and introduces new layers of complexity. For example, Egypt and Ethiopia continue to grapple with disputes over the management of the Nile River. While tensions have eased with a Chinese-brokered deal, historical rivalry between Saudi Arabia and Iran for regional dominance in the Middle East persists. Argentina, facing economic challenges and an impending presidential election, faces an uncertain political future. Iran's resentment against the United States Israel could put neutral countries like India in a dilemma. Meanwhile, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia, both modernised and oil-rich nations, increasingly focusing on Asian commodity markets is also poised to ruffle some feathers within the grouping.

BRICS+ Collective Clout

The BRICS, despite cynicism regarding their lack of commonality, represent a group of nations that each holds a significant position within their respective regional trade blocs. It is more appropriate to view them as individual pillars supporting a progressively stable structure.

The expanded BRICS, including its new member states, now accounts for 37% of global GDP when measured on a Purchasing Power Parity (PPP) basis, surpassing the G7's 30% share based on PPP values. Furthermore, the expanded BRICS, with the inclusion of new members, constitutes a substantial global trade bloc. Importantly, the expanded BRICS platform effectively brings an additional 69 countries into its sphere of influence, owing to its leadership roles in regional trade blocs. This signifies the BRICS' expanding global footprint and its potential to shape economic and geopolitical dynamics on a broader scale.

1. Brazil is a key player in Mercosur - the Southern Common Market- considered Latin America's largest trade bloc.
2. Russia has a substantial presence in the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) and the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS).
3. India stands as a significant member of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) and the Bay of Bengal Initiative for Multi-Sectoral Technical and Economic Cooperation (BIMSTEC).
4. China is a central figure in the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP).
5. South Africa holds prominence in both the Southern African Customs Union (SAEU) and the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA). Moreover, recent additions to this dynamic have further reinforced their trade influence:
6. Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) are pivotal members of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and the Greater Arab Free Trade Area (GAFTA).
7. Egypt participates actively in GAFTA and is also part of AfCFTA.
8. Iran is an integral component of the EAEU and plays a significant role in the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC), facilitating connections between the Middle East, Central Asia, and South Asia.
9. Argentina holds a substantial position in Mercosur, serving as the bloc's second-largest economy after Brazil.
10. Ethiopia is actively involved in the Common Market for Eastern and Southern Africa (COMESA) and AfCFTA.

Quest for a New Global Currency

In recent times, there has been an increasing global discourse advocating for the adoption of alternative currencies to the US dollar, primarily due to the economic disruptions arising from Western sanctions against Russia and its subsequent exclusion from international dollar-based trading systems, such as SWIFT.

The concept of a common currency among BRICS nations, referred to as the "R5," was not on the formal agenda during the 2023 BRICS summit in Johannesburg. Instead, the focus lied on increasing trade using their respective national currencies. Presently, about 30-35% of intra-BRICS trade is conducted in their national currencies, with the majority still relying on the US dollar and euro.

The next step in liberating BRICS trade from US dollar and euro dominance is the introduction of sovereign digital currencies. China, India, and Russia are already conducting usage trials of their digital currencies, backed and managed by their central banks, with plans for widespread adoption by 2025. Brazil and South Africa are following suit, albeit with a slight delay. The introduction of digital sovereign currencies will enable BRICS nations to conduct financial transactions independently of the global SWIFT system, allowing them to bypass financial sanctions and expand trade within their own currencies.

The idea of a common BRICS currency may only materialise after a global digital financial transformation has been completed, as it involves complex questions about governance and ideology. While these are longer-term perspectives, they nonetheless reflect the evolving dynamics in the world of finance and geopolitics. In this context, it becomes imperative to study whether the concept of a BRICS currency is viable.

Is BRICS Currency Viable?

In April, the BRICS nations announced their intentions to introduce a new reserve currency. But the key question is whether BRICS fulfills the requisite criteria for establishing a global currency on par with the US dollar. These criteria encompass:

- ◆ Economic Size: The US dollar is presently the most extensively traded currency, accounting for nearly 90 percent of global foreign exchange transactions. One significant factor buttressing the dollar's dominance is the United States' status as the world's largest economy, boasting a GDP of approximately US$25.46 trillion, equivalent to 24 percent of global GDP. In contrast, the BRICS collective wields a GDP exceeding US$32.72 trillion, representing 31.59 percent of the global GDP. Collectively, BRICS projects a significantly greater economic prowess compared to the United States.

- ◆ Financial Outreach: The United States possesses a vast and sophisticated financial system comprising a network of banks, investment firms, and financial institutions adept at managing intricate international transactions. Global investors favor acquiring dollar-denominated securities due to their safety and high liquidity in exchange for dollars. In 2014, BRICS established the New Development Bank (NDB) as an alternative to established international entities like the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). The NDB's Contingent Reserve Arrangement (CRA) liquidity mechanism has garnered substantial interest from developing countries, addressing their shortfalls in dollar reserves and enabling the settlement of international debts. The NDB has also issued bonds denominated in local currencies, signifying BRICS' expanding financial influence.

- ◆ Military Strength: The United States derives considerable influence in international affairs from its formidable military capabilities, consolidating the dollar's status as a pre-eminent global currency. Nevertheless, the BRICS coalition encompasses Russia, China, and India, all of which possess robust military forces, ranking second, third, and fourth, respectively, after the United States, as per the Global Firepower Index. Although a military alliance was precluded in 2018, the primary objective of the bloc remains enhancing cooperation with developing nations. The feasibility of such an alliance remains remote, particularly considering the ongoing India-China border dispute and divergent stances on various geopolitical issues.

- ◆ Challenges: Foremost among the challenges is the potential for political motivations underpinning de-dollarisation to supersede practical considerations. While transitioning from the US dollar to their national currencies for trade settlements, certain countries may opt for a specific national currency within the group which could cause frustration among other members striving to boost their own national currencies. Such discordance in interest could undermine the prospects of introducing a common alternative currency.

The second challenge pertains to the escalating reliance on China as BRICS approaches the possibility of evolving into a currency union analogous to the European Union (EU). Such prospect is high owing to China's substantial share of BRICS GDP. The liberalisation of intra-BRICS trade, potentially leading to a substantial reduction or waiver of tariffs on imports from fellow member states, could result in an augmented bilateral trade deficit, particularly with China. Increased dependence on Chinese goods may amplify China's influence and afford it a more significant role in shaping the bloc's trade regulations, potentially fostering a new form of hegemony.

Given the divergent perspectives among BRICS member states, it remains uncertain whether the advantages of a common currency would outweigh the associated costs. While an alternative currency would effectively eliminate the expenses associated with dollar conversion in international transactions, BRICS members must exercise caution before proceeding with the creation of a new currency, as their actions may potentially contradict their individual foreign policy interests, considering their varying rationales for endorsing this novel initiative.

Strengthening the New Development Bank

The New Development Bank's (NDB) involvement in the 15th BRICS Summit in August 2023, centered around the theme of "BRICS and Africa: Fostering Accelerated Growth, Sustainable Development, and Inclusive Multilateralism," highlights the pivotal role of the African continent in BRICS' endeavors to reshape the global financial landscape. The BRICS coalition, comprising Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa, recognises Africa as a critical partner in promoting accelerated growth, sustainability, and a more inclusive global order. The chosen theme underscores their joint commitment to a fairer, multipolar world where emerging economies actively contribute to shaping international norms and institutions.

During the NDB's eighth annual meeting held in Shanghai earlier this year, the primary focus was on fostering technology transfer, promoting innovation, addressing challenges related to food and energy security, advancing sustainable infrastructure projects, and creating opportunities for development. The NDB's approach remains open to admitting new members (even non-BRICS countries are free to join) and fostering collaboration with international organisations. Bangladesh, UAE, Uruguay and Egypt became members of NDB in 2021 and 2022. The bank has partnerships with fellow multilateral development banks such as the World Bank, the African Development Bank and key national and global institutions including the China Construction Bank and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. Since its foundation, the NDB has signed more than 35 Memoranda of Understanding with various institutions, such as national development banks, enterprises and academia.

The NDB has already allocated $33 billion to support over 96 eco-sustainable projects within its founding-member countries. Additionally, it is transitioning towards financing projects in local currencies to shield borrowers from the impact of currency fluctuations, a move initiated in 2021 when the NDB ceased providing loans in USD and Euros. This reflects the BRICS nations' determination to recalibrate the global financial order in alignment with the development priorities of emerging and developing economies.

Conclusion

The expansion of BRICS carries a clear and impactful message to the established post-World War II order. It underscores approach extends to the use of the Internet of Things (IoT) in the recycling process of fabrics, contributing to sustainability efforts and promoting eco-friendly practices.

Across the ocean in the United States, technical textiles revolutionise the world of sports, offering high-tech all-weather sportswear that boasts features like waterproofing, thermal comfort, UV protection, and exceptional breathability, ensuring athletes perform at their best regardless of the conditions. These textiles also find application in high-tech sports uniforms, such as jackets equipped with heating technology, providing comfort and warmth for athletes competing in extreme cold. Additionally, health and performance monitoring sportswear, incorporating heart sensor straps, aids athletes in optimizing their performance by monitoring aerobic and anaerobic thresholds.

These diverse examples from different regions underscore the incredible versatility of technical textiles in addressing a wide range of challenges and opportunities in various industries.

India's Technical Textile Ecosystem

India is experiencing a transformative era in its textile industry landscape, with the emergence of technical textiles as a "sunrise industry." These textiles are more than just fabric; they represent innovation, sustainability, and a burgeoning entrepreneurial spirit. In a significant move, the Ministry of Textiles has approved the Startup Guidelines for Technical Textiles - Grant for Research and Entrepreneurship across Aspiring Innovators in Technical Textiles (GREAT), igniting a spark of innovation and entrepreneurship in this domain. This novel initiative is set to catalyse research, development, and academic growth in this sector.

Diverse Application Areas: The breadth of technical textiles applications in India spans Agro-textiles, Building-textiles, Geo-textiles, Home-textiles, Medical-textiles, Mobile-textiles, Packaging-textiles, Protective-textiles, and Sports-textiles. This diversity ensures a wide array of opportunities for entrepreneurs and innovators.

Cutting-Edge Technologies: The technical textiles sector has embraced cutting-edge technologies like Artificial Intelligence, Internet of Things, 3D/4D Printing, and Rapid Prototyping. These technologies are driving innovation and the development of high-performance textiles.

Sustainability: India's commitment to sustainability is evident in the focus on biodegradable and sustainable textiles. The development of sustainable materials is not just an environmental imperative but also a lucrative market.

Academic Integration: Recognising the importance of a skilled workforce, India is investing in upgrading academic institutions to offer courses and degrees in technical textiles, ensuring a steady supply of skilled professionals.

The GREAT Initiative for Startups

The Startup Guidelines for Technical Textiles - GREAT initiative is a game-changer for the technical textiles industry in India. Here's how it is set to facilitate research and entrepreneurship:

Financial Support: The initiative offers grants of up to Rs. 50 Lakhs for a period of 18 months. This financial support is a lifeline for aspiring innovators looking to translate their prototypes into market-ready products.

Incentives for Incubators: Incubators play a crucial role in nurturing startups. The Ministry provides 10% of the total grant-in-aid to incubators, encouraging their active participation in fostering entrepreneurship.

Commitment Requirement: To ensure dedication and authenticity, incubatees are mandated to invest a minimum of 10% of the funding in two equal installments. This commitment ensures that entrepreneurs are personally invested in their projects' success.

Niche Sub-segments: The initiative specifically targets niche sub-segments such as bio-degradable and sustainable textiles, high-performance & specialty fibres, and smart textiles. This focus will nurture innovation in specialised areas.

Academic Initiatives in Technical Textiles

To fuel the growth of the technical textiles industry, the Ministry of Textiles is investing in 26 academic institutions as they plan to offer specialised degree courses in technical textiles and upgrade their existing courses with effect from academic year 2025-26. The Ministry has asked these 26 institutes to upgrade their laboratory infrastructure and train the faculty in the application areas of technical textiles. Some of the premier institutes to be funded under the scheme include IIT Delhi, NIT Jalandhar, NIT Durgapur, NIT Karnataka, NIFT Mumbai, ICT Mumbai, Anna University, PSG College of Technology, Amity University, among others. These premier institutes are set to benefit from this initiative in the following ways:

Course Upgrades: Existing courses related to Textile Technology & Fibre Sciences, Design/Civil Engineering, and Fashion Technology/Design will undergo upgrades to cover various application areas of technical textiles, including specialty fibres, geotextiles, building textiles, smart textiles, and more.

Academic department	Subjects to be included in upgraded course
Textile Technology & Fibre Science	Technical Textiles Technology including Specialty Fibres
Design/Civil Engineering	Geotextiles & Building textiles
Fashion Technology/Design	Smart Textiles, Protective Textiles, Sports Textiles, Home Textiles, Cloth Textiles
Mechanical Engineering	Mobile Textile, Industrial Textiles

New Degree Programs: The introduction of a new degree program in Technical Textiles with a broad emphasis on application areas will create a pool of skilled professionals equipped to drive innovation and entrepreneurship.

Inclusion Criteria: The guidelines for enabling academic institutes in Technical Textiles' education have been revised to include institutes with high NBA (National Board of Accreditation) scores, NAAC (National Assessment and Accreditation Council) ratings, and NIRF (National Institutional Ranking Framework) rankings. This expansion aims to bring more institutions into the fold and ensure a robust academic foundation.

India's technical textiles industry is on the cusp of a revolution, thanks to the GREAT initiative and the Ministry of Textiles' forward-thinking approach. As we move forward, the convergence of research, entrepreneurship, and academia in the technical textiles sector promises a brighter, sustainable future for India and its skilled workforce. This sunrise industry is not just an economic opportunity; it's a path towards innovation, sustainability, and a better tomorrow.

Geotextiles Leading the Charge

Currently, Indian Technical Textiles market is the 5th largest in the world, sized at USD 22.5 billion in 2021-22, aiming to soar to an impressive $50 billion over the next five years. Collaborating closely with various government departments and state governments, the textiles ministry is actively working to boost the demand and penetration of technical textiles. This expansion mirrors the global trend, as the worldwide technical textiles market, presently valued at approximately $260 billion, is expected to reach $325 billion by 2025-26.

Among all categories of technical textiles, India's growth potential in the realm of geotextiles is substantial. Currently constituting a 2% share of total infrastructure project expenditure, this sector is poised for significant expansion. With an expected expenditure of $20-25 billion in domestic opportunities over the next 5-7 years as part of the National Infrastructure Pipeline (NIP), the prospects are promising. Furthermore, there is a robust global demand for geosynthetics, experiencing growth at an impressive rate of 30-33% Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR). Geotextiles find applications in critical areas such as road construction, railway development, dam projects, and soil erosion control, making them an integral part of India's infrastructure landscape with ample opportunities for growth and innovation, providing a promising outlook for employment generation.

Technical Textiles Machineries and Tools: A World of Opportunities

The manufacturing of machinery and equipment is pivotal for fostering a sustainable ecosystem within India's burgeoning technical textiles industry. Despite ranking fifth globally in terms of market size, India has historically relied on imports for critical manufacturing and processing machinery, which escalates production costs, particularly for high-end products. To address this, in December 2022, the Ministry of Textiles introduced a scheme aimed at catalysing research, innovation, and entrepreneurship in the domestic production of machinery, tools, equipment, and testing instruments for the field of Technical Textiles.

The initiative seeks to establish India as a global leader in this sector by fostering indigenous manufacturing and reducing dependence on imported high-tech machinery and equipment. Companies engaged in machinery manufacturing, textile/garment value chain manufacturers, research organisations, and academic institutions are encouraged to submit novel proposals under Component-I of the National Technical Textiles Mission (NTTM). This endeavor not only aligns with the "Make in India" program but also fosters collaboration with R&D leaders, machinery manufacturers, and academic institutions, creating high-skilled employment opportunities by producing quality machinery for the growing demand in the sector.

Conclusion

The trajectory of India's technical textiles industry is one marked by tremendous potential and innovation. With initiatives such as the Startup Guidelines for Technical Textiles (GREAT), academic integration, and the focus on indigenous machinery production, the government is actively fostering an ecosystem conducive to research, entrepreneurship, and sustainable growth. As the sector embarks on its journey towards a projected $50 billion market size, it is poised to not only fuel economic prosperity but also contribute to the nation's technological readiness and environmental sustainability. This sunrise industry exemplifies India's commitment to harnessing its vast potential, both in terms of skilled workforce and market demand, to lead the global stage in technical textiles. With continued dedication and collaboration across government, industry, and academia, India stands on the threshold of an era where innovation and sustainability converge, promising a brighter and more prosperous future for all stakeholders involved.

Aditya-L1 : India's Maiden Solar Mission

Objectives of the Mission

- Study of Solar upper atmospheric (chromosphere and corona) dynamics
- Study of chromospheric and coronal heating, physics of the partially ionized plasma, initiation of the coronal mass ejections, and flares
- Observe the in-situ particle and plasma environment providing data for the study of particle dynamics from the Sun
- Physics of solar corona and its heating mechanism
- Diagnostics of the coronal and coronal loops plasma: temperature, velocity and density
- Development, dynamics and origin of CMEs
- Identify the sequence of processes that occur at multiple layers (chromosphere, base and extended corona) which eventually leads to solar eruptive events

- Magnetic field topology and magnetic field measurements in the solar corona
- Drivers for space weather (origin, composition and dynamics of solar wind)

How is the Mission unique?

- First time spatially resolved solar disk in the near UV band
- CME dynamics close to the solar disk (~ from 1.05 solar radius) and thereby providing information in the acceleration regime of CME which is not observed consistently
- On-board intelligence to detect CMEs and solar flares for optimised observations and data volume
- Directional and energy anisotropy of solar wind using multi-direction observations

BEST ENTRY FOR ISSUE DATED 26 August - 1 September 2023

During his Independence Day speech, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi applauded the efforts of over 10 crore women involved with Self-Help Groups and working at the grassroots level as Anganwadi workers. Sharing his vision of women-led development, the Prime Minister talked about engaging and empowering women in Science & Technology by training these women to operate and repair drones, making drones available for agricultural purposes and strengthening India's agritech. What other robust and path-breaking initiatives would you like the Government to undertake, to cement India's vision of women's development and women-led development?

Hardil Noor Singh Sahni
New Delhi

Women's development

A nation cannot progress until and unless its women progress. India is on the cusp of being a developed economy and a world power, but it cannot do so without the contribution of our women folk.

Government of India is undertaking several initiatives to promote women's development and women led development. Some of these are :

1. Opened bank accounts for all women under PM Jan Dhan Yojana and even offered eligible women, overdraft facility thereby empowering them financially
2. Gave free treatment to eligible women under AYUSHMAN Bharat scheme for better health care
3. Encouraging women to take up science, technology and engineering fields through the Vigyan Jyoti Yojana
4. Encouraging women scientists to return to their work after a break in career through Kiran Scheme
5. Gave free houses to Women under PM Awas Yojana thereby empowering women both mentally and physically by registering a house under her name

These were only a few of the novel schemes offered by government of India for women empowerment and women led development but the areas I would like government to intervene for women's development and women led development are :

1. Give landless Women in rural areas, title rights of agricultural land through various schemes for agriculture sector and also including landless women farmers as beneficiaries under PM Kisan Yojana
2. Improving Gross enrolment rates of girls in schools especially higher education through improved facilities in educational institutions like separate washrooms and also initiating reservations for girls in higher education
3. Empowering women through increased representation of women in parliament and also in state legislatures through specially reserved seats for women, it is a proven fact that increased women representation increases women's empowerment
4. Increasing number of women directors in top nifty 50 companies, will empower women with job satisfaction and a congenial environment to work in
5. Skilling women in various disciplines through PM Kaushal Vikas Yojana, thereby increasing their purchasing capacity and power and also increasing their visibility in skilled day to day tasks and jobs

The above mentioned steps will not only help empower women but also help us in achieving SDGs and our various international commitments especially under the mandate of UN Women.

Empowering women will have multiple benefits like an added impetus to the goal of achieving 5 trillion dollar economy by 2030 and also contribute to high GDP growth rates in near future, besides this if women are empowered the nation is empowered and India can move forward with huge steps in our Kartavya Kaal, with the help of wheels of the economy moving together in a steadfast manner.

BRICS: The Building Blocks of a New ...

the need to recognise the multi-polar reality of the contemporary world and adapt to changing dynamics. The increasing number of countries interested in joining BRICS reflects deeper systemic issues, including dissatisfaction with Western unilateral financial sanctions, manipulation of international payment systems, unmet climate finance commitments, and inadequate consideration of food security and global health concerns in the Global South during the pandemic.

Additionally, the growing trend of trading in national currencies, exemplified by the recent rupee-designated oil transaction between India and the United Arab Emirates, challenges the long-standing dominance of the petrodollar and signals a shift in global commodity trading. While the expansion of BRICS may not establish an entirely new world order, it undoubtedly signifies an effort to shape an alternative global order more in line with the aspirations of developing nations.

The future challenge lies not only in determining which countries become BRICS partners but also in defining the authority behind policy decisions. Although BRICS' consensus-based decision-making approach may present complexities, the sincere pursuit of democratisation within the organisation holds inherent value and deserves dedicated pursuit.

6th Rashtriya Poshan Maah to Nurture a "Suposhit Bharat"

The Ministry of Women and Child Development has commenced the celebration of the 6th Rashtriya Poshan Maah (National Nutrition Month) throughout September 2023, with a call for nationwide participation in the endeavor towards a "Suposhit Bharat" (Nutrition-rich India). This year, the primary objective of Poshan Maah 2023 is to comprehensively combat malnutrition through a life-cycle approach, a cornerstone of Mission Poshan 2.0. The focal point of Poshan Maah 2023 is to cultivate widespread awareness regarding critical stages of human life: pregnancy, infancy, childhood, and adolescence.

Government Approves BESS Scheme to Power a Sustainable Future

The Union Cabinet has approved the "Viability Gap Funding (VGF) Scheme" for the development of Battery Energy Storage Systems (BESS). This scheme sets out to create 4,000 MWh of BESS projects by the fiscal year 2030-31, backed by financial support of up to 40% of the capital costs in the form of Viability Gap Funding (VGF). The scheme is tailored to harness the potential of renewable energy sources like solar and wind power with the primary objective to generate clean, reliable, and cost-effective electricity. With an initial budgetary allocation of Rs. 9,400 crore, the scheme ensures that at least 85% of the BESS project capacity is reserved for Distribution Companies (Discoms). This approach enhances renewable energy integration into the power grid while optimising transmission network usage, ultimately reducing the need for costly infrastructure upgrades.

India Launches G20 Tourism and SDG Dashboard in Collaboration with UNWTO

The United Nations World Tourism Organization (UNWTO) and India's G20 Presidency have joined hands to launch a new tool to advance the contribution of tourism policies and initiatives towards the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The G20 Tourism and SDG Dashboard showcases best practices in tourism, case studies, and insights from G20 countries, and serves as a reference tool. It showcases the pillars of the Goa Roadmap for Tourism as a vehicle for achieving the SDGs around the five priority areas adopted by the G20 Tourism Working Group, which are: (i) Green Tourism (ii) Digitalisation (iii) Skills (iv) Tourism MSMEs and (v) Destination Management. Representing over 70% of global tourism, the G20 countries play critical role in transforming the tourism sector.

ASI Launches "Adopt a Heritage 2.0" Program to Preserve India's Rich Cultural Heritage

The Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) launched the "Adopt a Heritage 2.0" program on September 4 with the aim to foster collaboration with corporate stakeholders to better maintain and rejuvenate the country's numerous historical monuments. India boasts 3,696 protected monuments that serve as custodians of its rich cultural legacy and play a pivotal role in driving economic growth. This endeavor aligns with the vision of 'Virasat Bhi, Vikas Bhi' and seeks to engage corporate stakeholders who can contribute through their CSR (Corporate Social Responsibility) funds for developing, providing, and maintaining amenities related to hygiene, accessibility, safety, and knowledge at the identified monuments. Additionally, a mobile app named "Indian Heritage" has been introduced. This app will serve as a platform to showcase India's heritage monuments, providing state-wise details, photographs, lists of available public amenities, geo-tagged locations, and a feedback mechanism for citizens.
