Empowering Democracy: Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam

Jyoti Tiwari
Bhupendra Singh

In the annals of a nation's history, there come moments that stand as monumental milestones, etching their significance into the collective memory of its people. These moments become the linchpin of societal evolution, marking the transition from one era to another. Such a moment has dawned upon India, a nation deeply entrenched in its democratic roots, as it witnesses the culmination of a dream deferred for nearly three decades.

The "Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam" has set the stage for a transformative journey, heralding a new era of representation and women-led development. It's a moment that resonates powerfully against the backdrop of the grandeur of the new parliament building, a symbol of boundless aspirations and untapped potentials. In one sweeping legislative motion, India has unfurled the banner of women's empowerment, embarking on a path to secure a long-awaited right for its women.

This historic Act, an embodiment of the collective will and aspiration of a nation, reflects India's commitment to nurturing and harnessing the strength of its women, symbolising the dawn of a new India- one where the mantra of "Nari Shakti" guides the ship of state towards a brighter horizon.

With unwavering resolve, the government led by Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi presented 128th Constitutional Amendment bill that seeks to reserve 33 percent of seats for women in the Lok Sabha, State Legislatures and National Capital Territory of Delhi. The "Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam" has not only flung open the doors of opportunity but has also paved the way for women of India to play a pivotal role in shaping the nation's destiny. Home Minister Shri Amit Shah, addressing the Parliament, declared, "After the forthcoming general elections, the census and delimitation exercise will take place, and soon, our mothers and sisters will occupy seats in Parliament, steering the course of our nation's future."

Furthermore, Finance Minister Smt. Nirmala Sitharaman articulated a vision of inclusivity by announcing reservations for women belonging to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in seats allocated for these communities. This bill, a pivotal piece of legislation, represents not only a historic shift but also an embodiment of India's unwavering commitment to justice, equality, and representation for all, she remarked.

Debate and Voting

In the hallowed halls of the new Parliament, a robust discourse ensued, with 60 members participating in an eight-hour-long discussion in the Lok Sabha, and an impressive 27 of them being women parliamentarians. The resounding consensus in favour of the 128th Constitution Amendment Bill 2023 in the Lok Sabha, with 454 members extending their support, demonstrated the bill's undeniable mandate for change. A constitutional requirement demanding a two-thirds majority of members present and voting was comfortably met, with just two members opposing the bill- a testament to the widespread endorsement of this transformative legislation.

In the Rajya Sabha, the discussions were no less intense, with an impressive 72 members participating in the debate, which extended over 11 hours. The outcome was a resounding affirmation, with 215 MPs voting in favour of the bill and none against it.

Anusandhan National Research Foundation Empowering India's Future

Dr. Mukesh Khare

Dr. Priyanka Kulshreshtha

If we knew what we were doing, it would not be called research, would it?— Albert Einstein's insightful remark captures the essence of research as an ever-expanding domain that defies conventional boundaries. In the context of India, research has historically been concentrated within a select few prestigious institutions, leaving a substantial portion of the educational landscape underdeveloped in terms of research infrastructure and funding. Recognising the importance of research in the knowledge-driven economy of the 21st century, India has embarked on a journey to revitalise its research ecosystem.

The G20 Indian Presidency for 2022-23 has underscored the significance of the education sector, particularly in fostering collaborative and innovative research endeavors. These efforts are directed at addressing critical challenges such as energy sustainability, public health improvement, climate change mitigation, and the intersection of science with society and culture. However, the success of these initiatives hinges on international support and cooperation.

In response to these imperatives, the Government of India has made a strategic decision to establish the Anusandhan National Research Foundation (ANRF). This apex body will take over the role of the Science and Research Board (SERB), initially established in 2009 under the Department of Science and Technology (DST). ANRF's mission is multifaceted: to promote interdisciplinary research across Indian universities and colleges, to decentralise the national research landscape, and to act as a bridge between the scientific community, central and state governmental bodies, non-profit organisations, and industries.

ANRF's primary focus is to ensure that critical national and global issues, such as access to clean water, sanitation, clean energy, and holistic health, receive thorough and well-informed attention from researchers. It aims to facilitate collaboration and cross-border research in higher education, aligning with the priorities discussed during the G20 sessions of the Indian Presidency. The ultimate objective is to translate research breakthroughs into effective policies that benefit the public.

Another key mission of ANRF is to address the disparity between well-established centers of excellence and often overlooked universities and colleges, which grapple with limited resources, outdated teaching methods, and meager research budgets. By fostering collaboration and knowledge-sharing, ANRF seeks to level the playing field and nurture a pool of talented individuals across the nation.

India's remarkable ascent in the Global Innovation Index (GII), from 81st place in 2015 to 40th in 2022, underscores its transition into a knowledge-based economy. However, India's expenditure on Research and Development (R&D) as a percentage of GDP has remained among the lowest globally, at just 0.65%, compared to countries like the USA (2.9%), China (2.2%), and Israel (4.9%). In this context, ANRF represents a breath of fresh air for India's R&D landscape, aiming to revitalise and reinvigorate research efforts and foster a thriving ecosystem of innovation and discovery.

Over decades, the research culture in lesser known and recognised colleges/institutes/universities in India has declined. Though, Indian researchers have produced 54% more research articles in last 5 years, yet the quality and impact (in terms of citations in top academic journals) of these research articles have not been very encouraging. The quality of research publications and their citations pose an indelible question mark to its credibility. Only 15% of these articles have been cited in the top academic journals. The existing research framework showcases a limited form of engagements with industry, wherein academia predominantly focuses on theoretical concepts that are confined to publications and reports, lacking practical applications in the real world.

The formulation of ANRF is in line with the American model of National Science Foundation (NSF) of the United States. The birth of ANRF, stems from the belief that the advancement of human knowledge and growth lays emphasis on the creation of new scientific and social know-ledge. This is bound to foster a free culture of mentorship, cross-pollination and adequate support within India's universities and colleges of higher education and research.

As proposed in the ANRF bill, about 80% of the total funding budget for research will be coming from private partners. The efforts will be focussed on creating an environment that fosters solution-driven research within Indian universities and colleges that currently lack adequate research infrastructure. This will be achieved through partnerships with industries spanning multiple sectors and esteemed centres/institutes of excellence across the nation. ANRF's essence will be characterised by a visionary, interdisciplinary, flexible, and collaborative approach.

The existing disparity between academia's research outputs and industry demands can be progressively reduced by the effective implementation of ANRF. This approach will also provide assistance and backing to highly capable yet under-resourced colleges, institutes, and universities across the nation. A meticulously structured bottom-up strategy will bolster research at the grassroots levels, elevating it to gain recognition regionally, nationally, and internationally. This, in turn, will significantly enhance the Indian research ecosystem.

As a key point of discussion during recent G20 sessions, it is deemed that flexible and swift allocation of financial incentives and funds is as important as vertical and horizontal collaborations between centres of excellence and less privileged educational institutions. Through the establishment of the ANRF, enhanced collaboration among universities, academia, R&D clusters, and private sectors, combined with adaptable fund allocation and rapid research response, as well as a shared commitment among relevant institutions, will be harnessed to address common challenges and develop sustainable solutions. These centres/institutes of excellence can take into their ambit a regional consortium of universities/institutes/colleges with a common research interest and nurture them with resource training, capacity building, and sustainable hand holding. Concurrently, industries can engage as partners in pertinent research domains with this regional consortium of universities/institutes/colleges and centres/institutes of excellence, providing both technical expertise and financial backing to foster innovative ideas grounded in significant research potential. This practice will help uplift the capable but less fortunate colleges/institutes/universities and bring newer concepts, innovations, technologies, capacity building, and laboratory upgradation, which will be of further help to the scientific community and research landscape in India at large.

During India's G20 Presidency, there was a significant emphasis placed on several key areas, including the improvement of programs supporting Foundational Literacy and Numeracy (FLN), the advancement of techenabled learning, and the strengthening of research and innovation. Foundational Literacy and Numeracy were recognised as fundamental building blocks for the development of advanced knowledge and skills, empowering individuals for lifelong learning, and aligning with Sustainable Development Goal 4 (Quality Education) while contributing substantially to other SDGs. The ANRF is poised to act as a pivotal support platform for FLN. It will facilitate cross-border collaborations and provide essential financial support, thereby creating opportunities for continuous and adaptable learning.

Further, within the framework of G20 educational policies and programs, aligned with the National Education Policy (NEP), there was a recognised need to invest in the creation of an open, interoperable, and evolving public digital infrastructure in the education sector in the form of the National Digital Education Architecture (NDEAR), which adopts a building block approach and the establishment of a National Education Technology Forum (NETF) to facilitate the systematic adoption of technology at various levels of education. Simultaneously, the Multi-disciplinary Education and Research Improvement in Technical Education (MERITE) initiative was set in motion to modernise the nation's technical education sector in accordance with the NEP's outlined reforms. These endeavors are complementary to the mission of the ANRF, which emphasises interdisciplinary research, innovation, and collaborative partnerships to enhance the quality and accessibility of education and research on a global scale.

To accomplish this, the indigenous group of researchers from the centres/ institutes of excellence and regional consortium of universities/institutes/ colleges will first explore the demands and requirements of the industry/ corporates and then pitch in collaborative research proposals to the ANRF Executive Committee (EC) for block funding and further deliberations. Subsequently, they will jointly present collaborative research proposals to the Executive Committee (EC) of the ANRF for block funding and further deliberations. To ensure an effective and comprehensive evaluation and recognition of such collaborative and applied research proposals from the regional consortium and centres of excellence, the ANRF EC should possess an inherent capacity and perspective that embraces interdisciplinarity and applied

Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's 'Mann Ki Baat'

HIGHLIGHTS

In the latest edition of monthly broadcast 'Mann Ki Baat' aired on September 24, 2023, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi shared inspiring stories and updates on various topics of national interest and importance.

Chandrayaan-3 and G-20 Success:

The Prime Minister began by discussing two significant topics that have been capturing the nation's attention. First, the successful landing of Chandrayaan-3 on the Moon. The PM recalled that more than 80 lakh people watched this historic event on ISRO's YouTube Live Channel, reflecting the deep attachment of Indians to space exploration. He also highlighted the 'Chandrayaan-3 Maha Quiz' competition, urging everyone to participate and test their knowledge about this remarkable achievement in space exploration.

The second topic was the successful hosting of the G-20 summit in Delhi. Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi claimed that India's leadership shone as it made the African Union a full member of G-20, a move that symbolised India's commitment to inclusive global governance. Additionally, India's proposal for the India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor was seen as a visionary step in shaping future world trade. The Prime Minister underlined how history will remember that this corridor was initiated on Indian soil.

Youth Participation in G-20: The Prime Minister lauded the active participation of Indian youth during the G-20 events, with universities hosting programs related to the summit. He invited college students to join the 'G20 University Connect Programme' and engage in discussions about the future of India and its youth. This initiative aims to foster a sense of responsibility and participation among the younger generation in shaping India's global standing.

World Tourism Day: On the subject of World Tourism Day, and the Prime Minister emphasised the importance of tourism, not only as a means of travel but as a significant source of employment in

24 September, 2023

India. He noted that India's appeal as a tourist destination has been growing, thanks in part to recent events like the successful G-20 summit. The Prime Minister encouraged everyone to explore India's diverse culture and heritage, highlighting that tourism not only enriches travelers but also contributes to the livelihoods of local communities.

Heritage Sites: India's rich cultural heritage was highlighted with the recent addition of Shantiniketan and the Hoysala temples of Karnataka to UNESCO's World Heritage List. The Prime Minister congratulated all countrymen for this remarkable achievement. He also shared his personal experience of visiting Shantiniketan and its deep-rooted connection to Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore. The recognition of the Hoysala temples is a testament to India's architectural heritage. The Prime Minister urged travelers to visit these World Heritage Sites, promoting the country's history and culture.

Global Fascination with Indian Culture and Music: The global appeal of Indian culture and music was showcased through the story of Kasmi, a 21-year-old from Germany who has a deep love for Indian music and has mastered singing in various Indian languages. Her passion for Indian music, despite being blind since birth, is inspiring. The Prime Minister commended her dedication and noted that such stories of cross-cultural appreciation strengthen India's global ties.

Empowering Through Education:

The Prime Minister shared stories of individuals and communities dedicated to education. In Uttarakhand, local youth have established 'Ghoda Libraries' to provide books to children in remote areas, addressing the issue of limited access to education resources. In Hyderabad, 11-year-old Akarshana Satish's initiative of opening seven libraries for underprivileged children showcases the power of young minds and the impact of education. These stories highlight the transformative power of education and community-driven initiatives.

Animal Welfare: The Prime Minister emphasised the importance of compassion towards animals and recognised efforts to protect and conserve various animal species in India. He shared stories of individuals and groups dedicated to rescuing snakes and caring for pigeons, emphasising the role of animals in our culture and the need to protect them.

Vocal for Local: As the festive season begins, the Prime Minister encouraged citizens to support local products and businesses. He urged everyone to buy and use Indian-made products, contributing to the welfare of artisans and promoting start-ups that promote local goods. By doing so, individuals can play a crucial role in building a self-reliant and economically vibrant India.

Reviving Rivers: The Prime Minister highlighted the success story of the rejuvenation of the Sot river in Sambhal, Uttar Pradesh, which showcases the power of collective action and public participation in environmental conservation. The efforts of more than 70 Gram Panchayats working together to revive this vital water source demonstrate the impact of community-driven initiatives on environmental conservation.

Crafting Sal Leaves, Empowering Community:

The Prime Minister shared the remarkable story of Smt. Shakuntala Sardar, a beacon of inspiration hailing from West Bengal, whose life journey paints a vivid picture of resilience and unwavering determination. With a humble sewing machine, she embarked on a creative journey, delicately crafting intricate designs on 'Sal' leaves. The exquisite artistry she produced not only changed her own life but also breathed new hope into the lives of others engaged in collecting these leaves. Her craft gained rapid acclaim, and demand soared. Shakuntalaji's journey transcends her personal triumph. She now pays it forward by imparting her skill to numerous women, empowering them with the means to transform their lives.

Cleanliness Drive: The Prime Minister urged citizens to participate actively in cleanliness drives across the country as part of the 'Swachhta Hi Seva Abhiyaan', making it a fitting tribute to Mahatma Gandhi's commitment to cleanliness and sanitation. He invited people to engage in clean-up activities in their neighbourhoods, streets, parks, rivers, lakes, and other public places.

In conclusion, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi wished everyone a joyous festive season, encouraging citizens to celebrate the festivals with enthusiasm and to continue sending their messages and experiences for future 'Mann Ki Baat' broadcasts. He emphasised the importance of collective action, compassion, and supporting local businesses as means to build a prosperous and harmonious India.

research. To achieve this objective, the composition of the ANRF EC ought to involve representatives from local bodies, NGOs, village panchayats as 'Associates' (to provide need-based inputs), in addition to distinguished, experienced scientists and researchers from centres/ institutes of excellence, government advisors, members from relevant ministries, and industry representatives. These individuals will be responsible for overseeing the operational conduct of ANRF. The ANRF EC will be governed by Board members chaired by the Prime Minister of India and will be the sole decision-making body of the ANRF.

Challenges and Solutions

A significant challenge lies in shifting the mindset of researchers, faculty, and scientists who have been working in silos for many years within centres/institutes of excellence. This shift should emphasise the importance of interdisciplinary research and encourage them to explore how their research expertise can align with other subject fields to generate outcomes that contribute to the scientific and technological advancement of society. To attain this objective, centres/ institutes of excellence should re-evaluate the criteria used for the selection and promotion of faculties, researchers, and scientists. This reassessment should emphasise the inclusion of interdisciplinarity in research as a key criterion, alongside the degree to which their research outcomes contribute to the advancement of technology and science for the society, beginning from the grassroots levels.

Another significant challenge is the identification of a regional consortium that includes under-resourced universities/ institutes/ colleges while benefiting from highly capable faculty and facilitating them with essential guidance and support through centres/institutes of excellence. To locate these regional consortia, the UGC and AICTE should take the lead in creating a comprehensive database of under-resourced universities/ institutes/ colleges engaged in faculty research within their respective regions. Additionally, the UGC and AICTE should establish a standard set of eligibility criteria for faculty inclusion in this database.

Within the framework of ANRF, horizontal collaboration between centres of excellence, less privileged educational institutions, and the industries, providing swift allocation of funds, aligns seamlessly with the initiatives discussed during G20 meetings. These initiatives revolve around the exchange of knowledge, research, and resources on both national and global scales. To accelerate progress, G20 member nations will promote the alignment of all potential research and innovation partners capable of advancing circular and regenerative economic solutions, fostering greener value chains, and facilitating the scalability of solutions.

Success Stories

The Nonwovens Cooperative Research Center (NCRC), a successful collaboration between Government, Industry, and Academia (GIA), was established in 1991 at North Carolina State University with National Science Foundation (NSF) and industry funding. After NSF funding ended in 1998, NCRC continued to grow, becoming the most successful State-I/UCRC nationwide. Results include 30+ patents, three startups, outreach to 200+ companies, 10+ annual professional development courses, and $30+ million in facilities. NCRC now serves as the research arm of the Nonwoven Institute (NWI), which transitioned from public to private funding with 98% industry support.

Another example is Boeing's partnership with Caltech, focusing on technology advancement. Boeing collaborates with nine top research universities, including Caltech, for research in critical domains. This collaboration strengthens Boeing's position in innovation, fostering an enduring bond. Regular communication, annual "Research Review" meetings, and ongoing exchange between corporate and academic scientists drive this partnership.

ANRF is poised to establish a comparable trajectory for a productive and mutually beneficial partnership among Government, Industry, and Academia (GIA) within the research landscape. This initiative will serve to bridge existing gaps, particularly concerning under-resourced universities/ institutes/ colleges, ensuring they are no longer disadvantaged. ANRF's primary role will involve initiating, fostering, and guiding the availability of necessary resources, thus facilitating the inception of world-class, pioneering research at its grassroots. Such an endeavour holds the potential not only to elevate society on a broader scale but also to stimulate industry growth and technological advancement. Through ANRF, the foundation will be laid for a collaborative landscape that empowers all stakeholders, propelling research excellence and innovation to the forefront.

Empowering Democracy: Nari Shakti Vandan ...

Historical Context

To understand the significance of this new Act, it's essential to delve into the historical context. In 1993, India passed the 73rd and 74th Amendments to the Constitution, reserving one-third of seats for women in panchayats and municipalities. While this was a positive step towards gender inclusion in politics, the reservation did not extend to the higher legislative bodies, such as Lok Sabha and State Legislative Assemblies. As a result, the representation of women in these critical decision-making bodies remained abysmally low.

Nevertheless, it was widely recognised that the necessity of reserving seats for women in legislative bodies within the context of a democracy as intricate as India's cannot be overstressed. Numerous compelling factors underscored this crucial imperative:

- Under Representation- A Grave Imbalance: The current state of women's representation in India's highest legislative bodies is a matter of concern. In the 17th Lok Sabha, women constitute a mere 15% of the total members, while in State Legislative Assemblies, the average hovers at a dismal 9%. This glaring underrepresentation is not merely a statistical anomaly; it is a stark reflection of the systemic gender bias that persists within our political landscape. Such disparities stifle women's ability to effectively influence policy-making, essentially sidelining half of the nation's population.
- Empowerment Through Inclusion: Empowerment through representation lies at the heart of the argument for reserving seats for women. It is widely acknowledged that when a specific group is underrepresented in the political system, their ability to influence policy decisions is severely constrained. This isn't merely a matter of political participation; it's a fundamental issue of human rights. The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) underscores this, emphasising the imperative of eliminating discrimination against women in political and public life. CEDAW serves as a poignant reminder of the international commitment to upholding the equal rights of women and girls.
- Lessons from Local Governance: Positive Outcomes: Experience at the grassroots level provides compelling evidence of the transformative impact of reservations for women. When women are elected under such policies, they exhibit a pronounced propensity to invest more in public goods that closely align with women's concerns. These elected representatives become agents of change within their communities, addressing issues such as healthcare, education, and sanitation that disproportionately affect women. These successes aren't merely anecdotal; they are quantifiable proof of the potential unleashed when women's voices are heard and heeded.
- International Benchmarking: A Humbling Reality: India's representation of women in politics pales in comparison to many other nations. Countries like Sweden and Norway have achieved remarkable levels of female representation without the need for mandated quotas. These countries demonstrate that political empowerment and equal representation of women are not only attainable but also conducive to better governance and more comprehensive policy formulation. The glaring disparity between India's progress and these global benchmarks serves as a stark reminder that our democracy remains far from inclusive.

Country data on political representation of women (as of September 2023)

Country	% of Elected Women	Quota in Parliament	Quota in Political Parties
Sweden	46%	No	Yes
Norway	46%	No	Yes
South Africa	45%	No	Yes
Australia	38%	No	Yes
France	38%	No	Yes
Germany	35%	No	Yes
UK House of Commons	35%	No	Yes
Canada	31%	No	Yes
US House of Representatives	29%	No	No
US Senate	25%	No	No
Bangladesh	21%	Yes	No
Brazil	18%	No	Yes
Japan	10%	No	No

Note: In several countries, there is no law mandating quotas for women but some political parties reserve seats for women

In light of these compelling arguments, the reservation of seats for women in legislative bodies emerges as a paramount imperative. It is not a matter of favouring one gender over another but rather a recognition of the systemic imbalances that have perpetuated gender inequality in India's political landscape. Implementing such reservations is a strategic step toward fostering an environment where women's voices are no longer marginalised but central to the democratic discourse.

Moreover, it reaffirms India's commitment to international agreements like CEDAW, signaling to the world that gender equality is not merely a lofty ideal but a concrete and actionable commitment. By affording women the representation they deserve, India takes a bold step toward a more inclusive, equitable, and just democracy—one where women and men stand shoulder to shoulder in shaping the nation's destiny. It is not just about politics; it is about realising the full potential of a nation by harnessing the talents, perspectives, and aspirations of all its citizens, irrespective of gender.

Key Features of the Act

The 128th Constitution Amendment heralds a new era in Indian democracy with these essential features:

Reservation for Women: At the heart of the Act is the resolute commitment to ensuring women's active participation in legislative bodies. It mandates the reservation of one-third of all seats for women not only in the Lok Sabha and State Legislative Assemblies but also in the Legislative Assembly of the National Capital Territory of Delhi. This transformative step towards gender parity extends even to seats already reserved for Scheduled Castes (SCs) and Scheduled Tribes (STs) in the Lok Sabha and State Legislatures.

Commencement of Reservation: The Act sets in motion this epochal change through a systematic process. It stipulates that the reservation for women will come into effect following the census conducted subsequent to the bill's enactment and publication. Following the census, the critical task of delimitation will be carried out, ensuring that seats are allocated to women in a fair and equitable manner. This reservation will initially be implemented for a span of 15 years, ensuring a substantial period for the empowerment of women in legislative bodies. Importantly, the bill empowers the legislature to extend this reservation further through subsequent legislation, ensuring the continuity of this progressive measure.

Rotation of Seats: An innovative feature of the Act is the provision for the rotation of seats reserved for women. After each delimitation exercise, a new set of constituencies will be reserved, ensuring that women from diverse backgrounds and regions have the opportunity to represent their constituencies in the legislature. This dynamic approach fosters inclusivity and prevents the entrenchment of a select few, ultimately strengthening the fabric of our democracy.

Key Changes in the 2023 Act

The table below captures certain key changes between the 2008 Bill as passed by Rajya Sabha and the Bill introduced in 2023.

Key changes between 2008 Bill and 2023 Act

	Bill introduced in 2008 as passed by Rajya Sabha	2023 Act
Reservation in Lok Sabha	One-third of Lok Sabha seats in each State/UT to be reserved for women	One-third seats to be reserved for women
Rotation of Seats	Reserved seats to be rotated after every general election to Parliament/Legislative Assembly	Reserved seats to be rotated after every delimitation exercise

Counterviews and Concerns

Critically evaluating the reservation of seats for women in legislatures unveils three vital perspectives:

(i) The first dimension revolves around whether this policy can effectively empower women. It is irrefutable that when any group is underrepresented in the political system, their capacity to shape policy and decision-making is constrained. The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) unequivocally underscores the necessity of eliminating discrimination against women in politics and public life, a commitment India has ratified. The undeniable fact remains that despite some progress, the representation of women in legislative bodies remains inadequately low. Research demonstrates that when women are elected under reservation policies, they tend to invest more in public goods closely aligned with women's concerns, making a substantial difference in their communities.

(ii) The second perspective probes whether there are viable alternatives to reservations for increasing women's representation in legislatures. It's an essential question that demands careful consideration. Alternative mechanisms like reservations within political parties or dual-member constituencies have been suggested, each carrying its set of advantages and disadvantages. However, the key lies in implementing a mechanism that effectively amplifies women's voices and addresses historical disparities.

(iii) The third perspective pertains to the validity of the reservation policy itself. Opponents argue that creating separate constituencies for women may inadvertently pigeonhole them and impede their ability to compete on merit. This viewpoint asserts that the focus should solely be on merit-based considerations rather than gender-based reservations. Additionally, critics suggest that reservations, while a significant step, might not singularly ensure the political empowerment of women. Broader electoral reforms, encompassing the reduction of criminalisation in politics, enhancing internal democracy in political parties, and curbing the influence of black money, are essential components that must be addressed for a holistic transformation of the political landscape.

(iv) While alternatives like political party reservations and the implementation of dual-member constituencies have been considered in pursuit of gender equality and enhanced representation, they are not without significant drawbacks. Political party reservations, while widening the candidate pool, do not guarantee increased women's representation, potentially leading to the underutilisation of women candidates. Moreover, strategically placing women in constituencies perceived as weak may create internal strife and hinder party cohesion. On the other hand, the establishment of dual-member constituencies, though preserving voter choice, introduces the risk of diluting representatives' commitment to their constituents due to shared constituencies. Additionally, this model may inadvertently relegate women candidates to a secondary status within the dual-member framework, and the logistical challenges associated with implementing it on a large scale could complicate parliamentary deliberations. These concerns highlight the complexities and potential pitfalls of these alternatives in achieving the goal of gender-balanced representation.

Conclusion

This historic legislation, the "Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam" is not just a legal text; it embodies a profound commitment and a promise delivered. It stands as a radiant beacon of hope, illuminating the path for countless women across the nation. This moment signifies the advent of an extraordinary era, where the voices of women cease to be mere whispers in the corridors of power but instead resound with undeniable authority throughout the hallowed halls of the Indian Parliament and State Legislatures. It heralds a transformation where women's agency and influence will fundamentally shape the destiny of the world's largest democracy. As India embarks on this remarkable journey, the horizon gleams with boundless opportunities, unfettered aspirations, and the vision of a prosperous nation, undeniably steered by the indomitable force of "Nari Shakti." This isn't just a Act; it's a testament to the resilience and determination of women, and it's a resounding affirmation of their rightful place at the helm of the nation's progress.

PTP-NER: The Gateway to a Global Outreach

EN EXPLAINS

As a succession to the Central Sector Scheme introduced in April 2023, the Ministry of Tribal Affairs launched the second phase of "Marketing and Logistics Development Promotion of Tribal Products in the North-Eastern Region" (PTP-NER) on September 21, 2023. This initiative promises robust and sustainable livelihood opportunities for tribal artisans inhabiting the eight North-Eastern States of the India. This is but a significant step in the path of socio-economic elevation of the tribal communities of the nation, especially the ones in focus for this initiative, which are Arunachal Pradesh, Assam, Manipur, Meghalaya, Mizoram, Nagaland, Tripura and Sikkim.

In this edition of the EN Explains series, let's look at the various facets of the scheme and how it has served as an earnest effort in bringing the target groups to the foreground.

The Vision

Launched by Union Minister of Tribal Affairs, Shri Arjun Munda on the 18th of April 2023 in Imphal, Manipur, the objective of this endeavour is to tap onto the massive potential of the North-Eastern tribal population, making it possible for tribal artisans to exhibit their vast cultural abundance through skill enhancement, meanwhile also enabling them to leverage the opportunity to augment their incomes and look beyond mere subsistence. With the provision of backward and forward integration to expand production capacity and publicity, the scheme aids the artisans in all respects, i.e., from assistance with incubation, optimisation of expertise, aggregation and entrepreneurship building to sourcing and devising marketing mechanisms, transit and advertising, also roping in technology to enhance the process.

The Mission

During the first phase of the project PTP-NER 1.0, tribal craftspeople were enlisted as part of the initiative through the 64 Tribal Artisan empanelment Melas (TAeMs) that were held district-wide from April 18- May 20, 2023. In partnership with state administrations and the Department of Posts, the Tribal Cooperative Marketing Development Federation of India Ltd (TRIFED), under the Ministry of Tribal Affairs, along with North-Eastern Handicrafts and Handlooms Development Corporation (NEHHDC), under Ministry of Development of North-Eastern Regions (DoNER), visited a total of 38 districts across the eight states. Artisans from these regions were invited to the platform to display their products, which could include natural products as well as art and craft items. With merchandising teams deployed in each mela, new artisans and novel products were identified and the same were sourced directly to ensure quality and authenticity. TRIFED and NEHHDC were able to achieve a commendable outreach within the tribal communities, i.e., 2526 artisans from 44 tribes, as part of these visits. This stunning participation saw 1056 people gaining empanelment and the remaining 1465 being inducted in training capsules to fine-tune their expertise. The accomplishment extends further with an outstanding procurement of 3115 products, which includes diverse products such as articles fashioned out of bamboo, textiles, forest produce jewellery, pottery, paintings, forest produce, to name a few. These events also acted as a medium to inform the communities about the benefits of the scheme and how it will help their products reach a wider audience in the longer run.

The teams of TRIFED and NEHHDC, kick-started the second segment of this pivotal programme, PTP-NER 2.0 scheduled to run from 21st September through 10th November 2023, with the primary goal of reaching out to 29 other districts in the Northern Eastern States and help tribal artisans unlock their potential to showcase their rich cultural heritage in the ever evolving market sphere. Looking to achieve a multidimensional goal, the dedicated teams from TRIFED and NEHHDC will conduct the Tribal Artisans Empanelment Melas in these regions to facilitate production capacity, and also aid the stakeholders introduce their products in the marketplace through smart and attractive packing. This is intended to improve the global value chain of the sourced tribal products and also provide the tribal communities a platform to sustain themselves financially.

The scheme undoubtedly emerges as an assurance to the tribal communities by way of promoting yet preserving their exclusive craftsmanship and products, whilst also paving a way for the artisans to enter the mainstream markets.

About TRIFED

Tribal Cooperative Marketing Development Federation of India Ltd. (TRIFED), established in 1987, is a national level organisation that functions under the Ministry of Tribal Affairs, and is entrusted with empowering the tribal communities by facilitating and providing them assistance with developing and selling their native products. In addition, the national body comes up with strategies to make the tribal communities conversant with relevant technology and novel strategies with respect to the market development of tribal products, such as pottery, tribal painting, metal crafts, etc., simultaneously making way for capacity boosting. This significant role involvement of the organisation ensures that these communities are equipped with an adequate understanding of the specific skills to undertake an activity and bolster it in their own scope. The organisation explores ways that the tribal products can thrive in the national and international markets, in the attempt to build a brand for them and also opening a door for the communities to create sustainable income for themselves by utilising the potential of their cultural heritage and resources.

About NEHHDC

Instituted in the year 1977, North Eastern Handicrafts and Handlooms Development Corporation (NEHHDC), strives to develop and promote the indigenous crafts of the region. Primarily, it provides technical and financial support to the craftspeople, weavers and local establishments and acts as a bridge between the artisans and consumers. To garner attention towards the tribal products and increase their accessibility, the organisation sources handicrafts and handlooms from the weavers and artisans and sells them in retail through their emporia called 'Purbashree', which is located in various cities namely- Kolkata, Shillong, Guwahati, Delhi and Bengaluru. Apart from this, Sales Centers, showrooms and exhibition centers are also set up to widen the possibility. NEHHDC also regulates production through artisans, cooperatives, or self-run production centers, in addition to promoting products in national and international exhibitions and managing policies to develop handicrafts, handlooms and other products pertaining to the categories.

ISSUE DATED 16 - 22 September 2023

Question: The Ministry of Women and Child Development is celebrating the 6th Rashtriya Poshan Maah in September 2023, under the theme 'Suposhit Bharat, Sakshar Bharat, Sashakt Bharat' (Nutrition-rich India, Educated India, Empowered India), highlighting the inter-connectedness of nutrition, education, and empowerment. In your opinion, how does the synergy between these factors contribute to the creation of a healthier more aware, and empowered society?

Kunjan Govil
New Delhi

Nutrition is the cornerstone of physical and mental health. Adequate nourishment is fundamental to growth, cognitive development, and disease resistance. It fuels the productivity of individuals and communities alike. Proper nutrition is especially critical for children, as it supports their physical growth and cognitive abilities. It is the foundation upon which educational success is built. Education empowers individuals with knowledge and awareness. An educated society is equipped to make informed decisions about nutrition, hygiene, and health. It fosters a culture of healthy living, reducing the prevalence of diet-related diseases.

Education also has broader implications, opening doors to economic opportunities and reducing poverty and food insecurity. Empowerment, particularly of women and marginalised groups, is a catalyst for positive change. Empowered individuals get access healthcare services, advocate for their rights, and participate in community development. Women's empowerment, in particular, is closely linked to improved family nutrition and health. These factors are deeply intertwined. Education enhances awareness of the importance of nutrition and healthy lifestyles. Improved nutrition, in turn, enhances cognitive abilities, making education more effective. Empowerment ensures access to resources and opportunities, enabling individuals to make healthier choices and lead healthier lives.

The synergy between nutrition, education, and empowerment is transformative. It contributes to a society that is not only physically healthier but also more conscious of the significance of nutrition and healthcare. It empowers individuals to take charge of their health, advocate for their rights, and contribute to community well-being
